BANFF—September 20, 1799.

THIS being the day appointed for the annual Visitation of the ACADEMY of BANFF, the several Schools were carefully examined in presence of the Magistrates, the Ministers of the town and neighbourhood, and theother Gentlemen intersted in the success of this institution.

The Scholars, to the number of one hundred and eighty-four, in all the branches of their education, acquitted themselves in such a manner, as afforded at once a most pleasing and convincing evidence of their own progress, and an ample testimosy of the abilities, diligence, and fidelity of Mr Cruics—snank the rector, and of the other teachers in the Academy. The many beautiful specimens of permanship exhibited this by, and the progress of the young gentlemen in the French classes, reflected high credit on the talents and assiduity of Mr Simpson, writing-master, and of Monsieur L'Abbe Dancel, teacher of the French language.

Sensible of the great importance, the increasing usefulness, and fourishing state of this seminary, the Patrons and Visitor spirate the great of the masters, and of recommending the Academy of Banff to the continued encouragement, and support of the public.

Supposing the national debt to be equal to four hundred millions (or more of 3 per cent. annuities, of the value of 50 per cent. that is, two hundred millions Serling;) fifty millions, or more if it can be employed, of this property, may be put into circulation, in the following manner. Let any flockholder, who would wish to circulate some part of his stock without selling it, transfer a certain quantity of it, suppose twenty thoufand pounds 3 per cents, to the Governors and Di-rectors of the Bank, who are then to deliver him fifty certificates, or notes of transfer; each of them to be marked as of the value of 100l, or a greater quantity in number, and of less value respectively; but the whole together to be of the amount of 5000l. Sterling. By this means every particular quantity of flock might produce a fourth part of its nominal amount for the purposes of circulation; for it is prefumed, the mercantile world would receive and circulate these stock notes as readily as they now do bank notes, as 1001. flock must be allowed a sufficient security for 251. money, by all who give any degree of credit whatever to the pu The flock thus transferred in trust, would not be tied up, as the proprietor might redeem it by bringing into the Bank a quantity of flock notes equal in amount to those originally obtained by him, or he might fell his flock subject to the charge upon it. The notes being supposed to circulate with the same facility as bank notes do, would be confidered as money, and confequently if lent by the original holders, would entitle them to receive interest on the loan, in like manner as the lender of bank notes now receives the interest for the loan of those notes; therefore, if according to the first supposition, fifty millions of money could thus be into circulation, the gain to the flockholiters brought into circulation, the gain to the house would be 2,500,000l. annually, and fo in proportion, if the circulating medium should be used in less or greater extent; but this would be too great a gain for the stockholder, particularly as he would derive other advantages from the scheme; it is therefore proposed that Government and the Bank of England should participate in the profits. It may be thought proper that fo much of the dividends as is equal to five per cent. on the flock notes should be kept back by Government; that is, that the payment of fo much of the dividends should be suspended during the war, and that the amount of these dividends should, at the end of the war, be divided between the Government and the Bank of England, and the perfons who should then be the flockholders; or if a suspension of dividends should be thought improper, some other arrangement might be adopted, as the mutual interests of Government and the stock proprietors might dictate. The liberty of iffuing the notes is not meant to be general, but to be given as a privilege to the fubscribers'to future go vernment loans, who will in confequence be induced to accept of a less rate of interest; and as the increase of money is intended to be confined in its first application, to the affiftance of the landed interest, which is the main object of the plan, the perfors who obtain the notes upon the fecurity of their transferred flock; are engaged to lend them upon mortgages of land, and to deposit the mortgages in the Bank as an additional G. I. fecurity for the notes.

We can only do that, my love, by going forward or returning; choose which. The female then that her eyes, flopped her ears, and fuffered herfelf to be conducted by her hufband-Such is the lot of wo-Nature has pointed out the respective distinctions, and the difference of our conformation. A taller stature a more folid and less flexible organization indicate the honourable duties of man. Here the laws of nature and fociety accord. " Woman and man, " fays Rouf feau, " are made for each other, but their mutual de pendance is not equal. Men depend upon women by their defires; women upon men by their defires and their wants.

Women were created to be the companions of man, to please him, to solace him in his miseries, to console m in his forrows, and not to partake with him the fatigues of war, of the sciences, and of Government .-Warlike women, learned women, and women who are politicians, equally abandon the circle which nature and institutions have traced round their fex; they convert themselves into men. They renounce the empire which they inevitably exercised by their weakness, to run vainly after the more equivocal empire of force. We hear of women that have fought, written, and governed What does this prove? The exception does not destroy the rule. And, besides, where is the feeling and amiable woman who would exchange the ineffable happiness of being loved for the unsubstantial pleafures of fame? Where is the man who would have preferred Joan of Arcl to the mild and timid Agnes Sorel? We admire the masculine mind of Elizabeth; but we love Mary Queen of Scots.

A RICH HARVEST .- Wednesday last one Mary Simpson, who lives at Ginns, near Whitehaven, and then at work in the harvest-field, was called from her labour,-to be informed that a property of fourteen thousand pounds, which had been remitted from the East-Indies, to a banker in Scotland, was at her disposal !- This capital fum, with other effects to a confiderable amount, was the acquirement of her former hufband, whose name was Blackstock.—She has two daughters, the oldest of whom is about 19 years of age. Her first husband died 14 years ago; and, it is faid, that a letter written by her on that occasion, to his brother in India, was the chief instrument in directing the executors to find the legal heir to the property.

A HINT TO FARMERS.—As this is a very late harvest, farmers should therefore not scruple to build large quantities of their victual in the most convenient parts of the fields they can find. By this method, two carts will do as much in one day as five or fix carts will do when the victual lies at a confiderable distance from the corn-yard. Moreover, it will also allow the stacks to be made very fmall, which will permit the victual to be led feveral days sooner than if it were to be built into large flacks; and every person knows, that the trouble and loss have frequently been very great, by allowing victual to stand a fingle day longer in the fields than it Bight have been.

ADMIRALTY-OFFICE-Sept. 24-1799.

Copy of a Letter from ANDREW MITCHEL, Esq. Vice-Adv. rel of the Blue, to Evan Nersan, Esq. dated on board Majesty's ship isis, near the Viciter, Sept. 20, 1799.

neo leave to transmit, for the information of my Lords Commissioners of the Admiraky, the juclosed extract of a letter I received from Captain Portlock, of his Majesty's sloop Arrow, giving an account of the capture of a ship and brig of superior force. The gallantry and good conduct displayed on the occasion by Caprains Portlock and Bolton, their officers and ships companies, merit my highest praise and thanks.

I HAVE the honour to state to you, that in obedience to you order of the 9th instant, I immediately got under weigh accompanied by the Wolverene, and proceeded on the service you old me the particular honour to entrust to my care.

On the evening of that day, the tide of flood being done are maderal phreat of the Teall, and at the offermore of the

we am flored abreast of the Texel; and on the afternion of the following day we anchored on the edge of the flack or flat, a-breast of Wieringen; at this anchorage I found it necessary to lighten the ship, which was, very speculity done, bringing her from twelve feet eight inches to twelve feet, and on the day following we turned over the flack, carrying shoal water from one side to the other. On the morning of the 12h instant we weighted again and proceeded on for the 'Ry Island, on approaching which we saw a ship and brig at anchor in the narrow passage that leadeth from the Fly Island towards Harlingen; it was soon perceived they were vessels of force, one sale to make the most one sale to make the sale and proceeded on for the Fly Island, on approaching which we saw a ship and brig at anchor in the narrow passage that leadeth from the Fly Island towards Harlingen; it was soon perceived they were vessls of force, and bearing the Batavian Republic colours; we approached the British and ancient Dutch colours flying together, until within half gun-shot of the brig, she being the nearest to us, without either of them changing their col urs; the Dutch colours were then hauled down, and I made the signal to engage the enemy as coming up with them, meaning the Welverene to engage the brig, and to passen to the ship myself.

Captain Bolton anchored his ship in the most masterly and gallant manner, and just in the position I could have wished, which was on his weather quarter; at a quarter of a cable distance, and so as to have enabled me, had it been necessary, to give the enemy a broadside in passing, without annoying the Wolverene, and after heaving on his spring until his broadside bore on the brig, fired one shot just to try his disposition, apon which the enemy fired three guns to leeward and hauled down his colours.

apon which the enemy mass down his colours.

I made the signal for the Wolverene to take charge of the I made the signal for the Wolverene to said the pilot to send her pilot to send the officer sent on board to send her pilot to the signal having de I made the signal for the Wolverene to take charge of the prize, and desired the officer sent on board to send her pilot to conduct the Arrow to the ship, (my Dutch pilots having declined the charge), and requested of Captain Bolton to follow me to the jetting passage, where the ship lay, and then pushed on towards her. We had to turn to windward towards the enemy against a strong lee tide which retarded our progress much; she lay with springs on her cables, and her broadside opposed directly to our approach, and for twenty minutes before we could bring a gun to bear with effect on her, annoyed us very much, and cut ns up a good deaf in the hull, sails, and rigging; but after bringing the ship up by the stern and head in a very narrow passage at about a quarter of stern and head in a very narrow passage at about a quarter of a cable from him, the contest became smart, but was short, for she struck in about fifteen minutes after we commenced our fire upon her, and just before the Wolverene (which was pressfire upon her, and just before the Wolverene (which was pressing in the most gallant manner to my aid) came up. I sent my first Lieutenant to take possession of her, and found her to be the Batavian Republic guard-ship Le Draak, commanded by Captain-Lieutenant, Van Esch, mounting 24 guns, 16 of them long Dutch eighteen-pounders, two long English thirty-two pounders, six fifty pound howitzers, and 180 men. From the howitzers I rather suppose langridge was fired, as several pieces of iron were picked op in the ship after the action was over. Our loss in killed and wounded (considering the length of time we had to advance on her under every disadvantage, such as being exposed to her raking fire for about twenty minutes, working ship in a very narrow navigation, shortening sail, and anchoring) is very small, having only to lament at present the death of one brave man; there are nine wounded, some of them badly, and myself slightly in the left knee.

The loss of the enemy I have not as yet been able to ascerpresent the death of one brave man; there are nine wounded, some of them badly, and myself slightly in the left knee.

The loss of the enemy! I have not as yet been able to ascertain; two dead and three badly wounded were found on board her, and from the appearance of great quantities of blood, &c. covered with tarpaulins, which Captain Bolton discovered, I am led to think has been very considerable; indeed some of them confess that a number were put into a boat, and sent to Harlingen immediately upon the ship striking, and from the number they at present muster not agreeing with the establishment, I am induced to believe that was the case.

On my going on board the Draak I found she had been built for a sheer hulk, and converted into a guard-ship, extremely old; her masts and rigging very much cut, and the vessel altogether unfit for his Majesty's service, determined me to destroy her; I therefore directed Captain Bolton to perform that duty, which he did effectually by burning her. This service performed, we weighed and proceeded towards the Fly Island, at which place we anchored on the 13th instant. I immediately sent Captain Bolton to take possession of the Batavian Republican ship the Dolphin, riding at anchor close to the town of the Fly. She had on our anchoring hoisted the Orange colours and the same step was taken on the island. A person came off from the Municipality, desiring him to surrender the island to the Government of the Prince of Orange; and I have the honour to request you will be pleased to direct some persons to be sent as soon as convenient, to take upon themisclives the arrangement and management of civil affairs in the island.

The wland of Schelling has not yet adopted the same step. I shall therefore, if it meets your approbation, take the necessary steps to induce them to do it.

To the captains and officers I have given paroles, which measure I hope will meet your wishes. The prisoners from the ship and brig, amounting to about 230, I have put on board the Dolphia, until I know your pleasure respecting them (I think they will mostly volunteer for the Prince's service): the command of which ship I have given, until your pleasure is known, to Lieutenant M'Dougal of the Wolverne. This officer, from his zeal at all times (from Captain Bolton's report) but particularly so on the service we were at present employed, I think, Sir, will merit your protection. And now, Sir, permit me to have the honour of expressing to you the sentiments of gratitude I feel at the conduct of all those employed under me in this little expedition; each individual has behaved well. To Captain Bolton, his officers and ship's company, I am particu-Captain Bolton, his officers and ship's company, I am particu-larly indebted for the gallant manner in which he pushed his ship on in attempting our assistance; indeed I ca owledge the greatest obligations to Captain Bolton, for his

To the officers of every description, seamen, and marines of To the officers of every description, seamen, and marines of the Arrow, I cannot sufficiently express my approbation of their cool and determined bravery. They acquitted themselves as Britons. To Mr Gilmour, my first Lieutenant, the greatest praise is due for the prompt manner in which he caused my orders to be executed in bringing the ship to an anchor under a heavy fire from the enemy. I therefore take the liberty of re-commending this zealous good officer to your protection. He heavy fire from the enemy. I therefore take the liberty of recommending this zealous good officer to your protection. He is an old follower of mine, has been two voyages round the world with me, and was one of the three young midshipmen that remained with Lieutenant Riou during the distress of his Majesty's ship Guardian; I therefore hope my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty will deem him worthy of promotion.
I have given him the temporary command of the Batavian Republican brig Gier, and shall send her round to the Texel as soon as possible. She mounts 14 long Dutch twelve-pounders, with a complement of eighty men. She is a most complete vessel, quite new, copper bottomed, well found, and never yet at sea, and in every respect fit for his Majesty's service, only wanting men. I mean to take four of her guns out for the wanting men. I mean to take four of het guns out for the purpose of arming four schoots to act hereabouts, either on the defensive or offensive.

appearance under sail, two forts and a detached gun opened round us, which I returned; the heavy smoke of my guns, and day closing, prevented the enemy directing theirs to effect.

The Hereditary Prince of Orange was at the headquarters of the allied army, forming a confiderable corps to act with our troops, which corps Gen. Bentinek was to command.

It appears that the French entertained great diffrust of the Dutch troops. An additional body of French troops had arrived at the head quarters of General Brune, which he had placed in all the most important posts, not chusing to commit the defence of them to the Batavians.

On Friday night an overland dispatch was received at the India House from Bombay, the contents of which, we are informed, relate to the further operarations of the Governor General the Earl of Morning. ton, and Lord Clive the Governor of Madras, in the Myfore country. The treafure found in the bullion de-pot, a few cofs from Seringapatam, affords a hope that a vast quantity of specie, in gold, mohurs, pagodas, and rupees, will be collected. The principal officers of Tippoo's Durbar were employed in rendering conplete statements of the revenue of the country, under the inspection of the British Government.-The troops belonging to the King and Company were in good health and spirits.

MILITIA.

It is intended by the new militia bill to repeal to much of the act of last Session as limits the number of volunteers from regiments of militia to one-fourth of their strength; instead of which, three-fifths of the number which should be furnished by the county, &c. to which each regiment belongs, may be permitted to enlift into fuch corps of regulars as his Majetty may think fit to appoint, each volunteer receiving, as under the late act, ten guineas on re-enlishing into the regulars, subject as before, to serve in Europe only, and not to be drafted from the corps for which he shall first enter. Where companies of not less than 80 privates of a militia regiment shall volunteer, they shall be kept together, and either attached to regular regiments, formed into diffinct battalions; three ferjeants and four corporals belonging at the time of fach new enliftment to each company of 80 men, being continued in their respective stations; whilst the following classe provides for the continuance of militia officers wain their men.

" That every officer fo volunteering to ferve in his Majefty's regular forces with any fuch company of men as orefaid, shall be entitled to and have temporary rank in his Majetty's regular forces, equal to the rank he shall have held as such Militia Officer at the time of fuch volunteering as aforefaid, and thereafter fuch permanent or higher rank as his Majesty shall think ft to grant; and every fuch officer fo ferving in his Majefty's regular forces as aforefaid, with temporary tack therein, shall, upon his reduction as such officer, be extitled to, and receive, the half-pay of the rank in white he shall have been serving at the time of his reduction, as if fuch rank had been permanent."

The plan of the bill, after numerous regulations respecting the mode to be adopted by the places which had furnished the militia-men, observes, "The certificate of the number of men to be raifed for the militia of fuch county, riding, or place, according to the quota required by this act, to be amended by out fuch number of men as shall be enlisted in his Majefly's regular forces from the militia of fuch county, 11ding, or place, by virtue of this act; and the county. riding, or place for which any private militia-man fo enlifted was raifed, shall not be obliged to ballot for any other in the room of the militia-man fo enlifted, but e discharged om raising any men to supply vacancy occasioned by any enlisting under or in putfuance of this act."

He flated, that the persons now petitioning for the aid Palliament, were possessed of property to more than me times the amount of the loan they would require. The circumstances which obliged them to apply at is time, would be found to be the stagnation of trade, ad confequent failures, and not arifing from raft and nutrayagant speculation. The prohibition against trading to any other part on the Continent except Hamingh, has caused an overflow to that market, and the lawres which succeeded, were already too generally ures which succeeded, were already too generally we and lamented, to require any comments from He hoped therefore that the House would take He hoped therefore that the Frome would be the perition these circumstances, and concluded with moving for leave to bring up the petition.

Dr LAURENCE faid he should referve any observaas he had to make on the bill to the third reading, hen, if certain alterations were not made in it, he ould object to it in toto.

Mr Appington thought that if we were not to folw up our first successes against the present Dutch overnment, we might be accused of having got hold of their fleet by a species of political swindling. Mr TIERNEY wished to know whether the fleet had furrendered on any agreement which bound this county to proceed in the undertaking at all hazards.

Mr Pirr replied in the negative, and in the course f a few observations, expressed very strong hopes of timate success, as wherever the English had penetrated

Our readers are acquainted with the numerous failures which have already taken place at Hamburgh, occasioned in a great measure by enormous speculations. Six houses failed between the 18th and 20th; one of them a very large house, which had very considerable dealings with England, Holland, America, and Spain, Denmark, Russia, Naples, and France.—This calamity has roused the attention of all the Hamburgh merchants, who have had feveral meetings. It was first proposed to follow the plan adopted a few years ago in this coun-try, viz. the issue of commercial bills—but this proposal met with opposition.—It was at length determined to form a commercial fund of reliefs, to which some of the most respectable houses in Hamburgh have already subferibed one million and a half of marks .- It is hoped that this remedy will be effectual.

The Emperor of Russia has forbidden any Danish ships to enter his ports. All those which were there have orders to quit the Russian ports in 48 hours, and for that purpose has issued the following proclamation:

CORN EXCHANGE, LONDON, Sept. 30.

We had but a small supply of Wheat at market this day; and, as the heavy rains la t week must have done material injury to the standing corn, our mealmen were very eager; besides which, many buyers from different parts of the country appeared, so that prices advanced from 10s to 12s, per quarter. Whether this advance will be supported or not must entirely depend on the future supply.

ter. Whether this advance will be supported or not must entirely depend on the future supply.

Barley was brisker at 2s per quarter advance. Malt is also dearer, but a dull sale.

But few Oats fresh in; all descriptions were dearer, and it is said a very prime sample was cotchelled out at 50s per quarter.

The supply of Beans was very short, and the demand brisk; they must be noted 4s per quarter higher.

Boiling Pease are 2s, per quarter dearer.

Fine Red Clover and Trefoil are a brisk sale at advancing prices. Middling and inferior sorts not in much demand; and rather cheaper.

DUBLIN-September 28.
We are forry to hear from different quarters of the interior of this country the most unplealing accounts; the Southern Districts in particular are at present in a e of apprehension, which, whether was advent of real danger or not, is at least totally destruc-tive of the peace and comfort of the counties in which it prevails.

Letters from the county of Wexford mention, that, alarming discoveries have been made at Enniscouthy, time enough, however, to allow of taking precautions against any danger which might be impending:

A correspondent from the county of Tipperary fays, that rebellious affociations are frequent in that county, their bond of confederacy being what is called the Black Oath, a covenant of a nature fo truly diabolical, that we will not venture to quote it.

Extract of a Letter from Clonmell, Sept. 26. The disturbed state of the country is beyond all comprehension: the disposition for robbery and murder in the lawless banditti here exceeds belief; it is not an uncommon thing to find a man shot in his field, or murdered on the road, and the perpetrators never heard of. The gentlemen of the country who have been active against them, find it necessary to come into the adjoining towns for fafety. The army and yeomen are on hard duty, and patroles fcour the country every night. Several prisoners have been taken, and many pikes; but I have not heard of any one being hanged yet. — I am afraid there is too much lenity shewn them; every man in whose possession a pike is found ought to be hanged without ceremony; and it is my opinion there will never be peace in the country until the leaders are feverely punished. Under these circumstances, it would be absurd in me to think of remaining here.

Message to the Council of Five Hundred, dated Sept. 15.

CITIZENS REPRESENTATIVES,

The Royal confpiracy is doubling its activity, and the Directory is redoubling its vigilance. It is zealoufly employed in tracing with the utmost care the poison-ed sources of corruption and seduction, the channels of which spread through all parts of the Republic. Citizens Representatives, even in the heart of Paris was the Royal proclamation preparing, which called upon the French to re-establish the throne, which invited them to acknowledge the power of Louis XVIII. and to throw then selves upon his clemency. At Paris, the monarchical circular letters were preparing, which were to be the precuriors of royalty. The Directory has caufed them to be feized, and has annexed some copies of them. Every thing that conspired to promote the under the hand of justice and the law. In such a case humanity itself is impatient to behold the avenging instrument of justice strike the guilty heads of those who behoused to overthrow liberty, and prepared the reftoration of the edifice of royalifa on the dead bodies of freemen. The Directory proceeds to notice the difference between the ignorant peafant, who is deluded in adopting the cause of toyalty, and the persidious author of his seduction, and attributes the principal mischiefs to the possonous publications hired by the partizans of anarchy and royalism. Yet the former is instantly punished, and the latter escapes, in consequence of the flowness of the proceedings, and the equivocations of the law.] Citizens Representatives, the Directory cannot believe that you will suffer our Jegislation to be liable to fuch a reproach, that guilt should be less severely punished than error, and that the feducer should escape while the person seduced is configned to punishment. Remember how the royal armies behave in those countries re-conquered by their phalanxes, to the their religion, and speak their language. The instant they are named, they are pur fued, arrefted, judged, condemned, and immolated! One day, one hour is fufficient, and the Directory might point out to your regret courageous and patriotic writers, who, in the Southern Republics, have been facrificed at the foot of the tree of liberty, sprinkled by to their liberal fentiments, who have been immolated to tyranny, examine whether it be not just, politic, and necessary to thew yourselves severe and inflexible against the agents of their executioners; whether you be no bound to fend before the Military Commissions those who conspire and invoke the re-establishment of despotism, by their harangues, their writings, their seductions, and their seducious clamours? The Directory is of opinion, that fuch a determination, by reanimating the hopes of the patriots, would strike serror into the fouls of the wicked; and it is by the speedy and vigorous suppression of guilt, by the generous exaltation of pure fouls, by the facrifice of traitors, and the encouragement of good citizens, that the country will witness the termination of her misfortunes, and the return of her triumphs. Sieves, Prefident. LAGARDE, Secretary-General.

COUNCIL OF FIVE HUNDRED. Message of the Executive Directory-Sept. 10.

The letters from Amsterdam and the Hague, dated the 16th Fructidor, (Sept. 2,) had announced that the Dutch fleet had furrendered, by capitulation, to the English; but those of the 17th having almost as foon denied that intelligence, the Directory were glad they had not communicated it to you. Unfortunately they have received the confirmation of it. The letter of the Minister of the Dutch Marine, of which they transmit you a copy, leaves no doubt upon the subject. It is too true, that at the approach of some English vessels which penetrated into the Zuyder Zee, a revolt broke out on board the Dutch ships; the crews declared they would not fight, and the whole seet has been surrendered without a battle, but also without a capitulation; for it appears that Rear Admiral Story and his officers would not confecrate, by any treaty, this culpable defection, and that they preferred remaining prifoners of war. Thus it is again upon treason that England has founded her fuccefs. She triumphs in the Texel, as the triumphed at Toulon, by the most but now, then, a success so obtained will be speedily expiated. Toulon, by the most Since the day of their debarkation the English army has made no progress. Hemmed in in the extremity of North Holland, the has in front of her the united Dutch and French armies. There, where there will be neither cowards nor traitors, she has not to hope for fuccess. We expect the news of a decisive engagement, and undoubtedly all Dutch Republicans who fight for their homes and their independence, will wash away the shame with which their failors have covered them-

The Directory have taken the speediest measures to fend to the Batavian Republic all the disposable force; you will fee that the most perfect unanimity reigns between the fuperior authorities of Batavia, and prefides over the measures, which are taken in common, for the fafery of the Republic.

SIEVES, Prefident. BRIOT .- I affe, why men, who had a powerful influence in Batavia, neglected exercifing it for the purpose of bringing into our ports these ships, whose loss diminishes our force one third, to increase that of the enemy? And why do men, united with us in the cause of liberty, announce to us coldly that it is an infurrection which forced them to furrender. Why do they remark that the Dutch Admiral did not capitulate, he who dared not blow himself up rather than surrender? The coward who has dishonoured himself, and whom you ought to disgrace for an example, did not imitate our brave Admiral at Aboukir. I move the fending a meffage to the Directory, to defire information upon the state of the armies and the provisioning of our fortreffes, and that the Commission of Seven report in three days.

HAGUIS Sept. 10. Letter from the Batavian Directory to the First Chamber.

Agreed to.

CITIZENS REPRESENTATIVES, We have just received advice from General Brune, that the enemy, having occupied the village of Warmenhuysen, by a strong detachment of troops, General Du-monceau ordered this post to be attacked, in the night from Saturday to Sunday, by fome chaffeurs of the 4th battalion, and the grenadiers of the 6th half-brigade, who drove away the enemy with great intrepidity, and took possession of the village. The enemy left behind them their baggage and their wounded. General Dumoncean commends highly the conduct of Captain Goudoever, who commanded the attack.

Mr Motz, the British Commissary General, has pub lished a proclamation in North Holland, requiring the nhabitants to supply the British army with bread, flour, corn, oats, hay, flraw, &c. for which receipts are to be given, and the amount at a reasonable valuation paid at e head-quarters as foon as the Commiffary's office shall be open. Such places as shall refuse to furnish the articles required are threatened with military execution.

The reports which have been current respecting the onduct of the Batavian troops and General Daendels in particular, in the action of the 10th, have caused the following letters to be published :--

GENERAL DAENDELS TO GENERAL BRUNE. Head-quarters at St Paneras, Sept. 13.

GENERAL. I learn that at Amsterdam and Haerlem, and also at the Hague, it is endeavoured to be established in the public opinion, that it is to my division that is due the non-fuccess of our last attack. I have long perceived that a fyltem of personal calumny has been pursued against me and the troops which I command. ever diffained to answer them, but I only defire that the facts may be known, in order that malevolence may not diffort them. I therefore prefume to request you, General, to authorife me to make public the report which I made you of the conduct of my division in the last affair, in case you should not have made mention of DAENDELS. it in yours.

General Brune having acceded to the above request, General Daendels has made public his report to him, which he fays, that

" At 4 in the morning of the 10th, his division was already in possession of Havencarpsel and Dirkshoorn; that, in advancing to Eningenburg, to attack that place, his march was impeded by the division of General Bonhomme, which occupied the roads, and he was forced to attack Fort Martensburg instead of Ennigenburg .-The attack had begun with success, the English had a bandoned their first intreachments, and he was preparing to carrythe village by main force, when he was informed that fome battalions of General Bonhomme's brigade were retreating in disorder, notwithstanding the bravery displayed by the General, and his efforts to stop them. On this, without suspending it, he slackened his attack, and proceeded to General Bonhomme's brigade, to put stop to the confusion which began to reign in it. He then returned to the place of his attack, in order to continue it, but judging by the fire, and the reports made to him by an aid-de-camp of General Brune, by Colonel Crafe, and by General Bouhomme, that the left of the army was not so far advanced as his division, he contented himself with maintaining his first advantages, till he received fresh orders; but when he found that the fire from the left had entirely ceafed, and that the enemy was filing off a confiderable column to turn his right, he fent two battalions, to defend the bridges which he cut down to cover his flank, and he ordered the retreat, which was effected with great order. The enemy attempted in vain to prevent his retreat, by at-tacking him at Dirkshoorn, but their howitzers set fire to the village." General Daendels concludes, by stating his loss at 150 men in killed and wounded. The following details have also been published officially: " Three hours after the retreat had been made in the greatest order, our troops, as well as the enemy, had eturned to their politions, and they were refting themfelves in their different cantonments. At the fall of night, a ferjeant of chaffeurs, paid by the malevolent, excited a false alarm by crying out, that the English cavalry had entered the village and maffacred all they met. He eafily inspired with terror troops without arms, surprised in the moment of rest and dispersed in the houses. The disorder was in an instant communi cated as far as St Pancras where General Daendels had established his head-quarters. He immediately proceeded to the fpot, made a battalion of the 5th division take up arms, and there stopped the disorder and those who were taking flight. Some however penetrated to the rear, and carried the alarm to the park of artillery, whence the drivers being frightened, fled with their horses to Alkmaar, others to Haarlem, where they spread the same groundless alarm, for not an English man had appeared. The ferjeant who was the author of this diferder has been thot, and the officers and folniers who fled to Haarlem, will be punished with the utmost feverity." SHOPS, &c. IN PRINCE'S STREET, AND TENEMENT OF LAND, At the Head of Todrick's Wynd.
